or had I vowed perdition to your person, am I not maried to you, tell me that?

Petru. I would I could not tell you.

Mari. Is my presence, the stocke I come of, which is worshipfull, if I should say right worshipfull, I lyed not my grand sire was a Knight;

Petru. a'th sheire

Mari. A soldier which none of all thy family ere heard off, but one conducter of thy name, a grasier that runne away with pay; or am I growne because I haue been a little peeuish to you only to try your temper, such a dog-leech, I could not be admitted to your presence.

Petru. If I endure this, hang me.

Mari. & two deaths heads two Harry groates that had their faces worne, almost their names too.

Petru. Now heare me, for I will stay no longer.

Mari. This you shall, how euer you shall thinke to flatter me for this offence, which no submission can euer mediate for; youl' find it so, what euer ye shall doe by intercession, what ye can offer, what your land can purchasse, what all your freinds or families can win shall be but this, not to forsweare your knowledge.

Petru. Thou art

Petru. Thou art ye subtlest woman I thinke liuing I am sure the lewdest; now be still, and marke me, were I but anie way addicted to the duell, I should now thinke I had met a play fellow to profit by, and that way the most learned that euer taught to murmur; tell me thou thou most poore, paultrie, spightfull whore, do you cryes, I'le make you ~~cry~~ roare before I leaue Mari. Your pleasure.

Petru. Was it not sinne enough, thou fruiterer full of the fall thou eatst, thou duell's breaker, thou seminarie of all sedition, thou sword of vengeance, with a thred hung ore vs, was it not sinne enough, and wickednesse in full abondance, was it not vexation at all points cap a pe, nay I shall pinch ye thus like a rotten rascall, to abuse the name of heauen, the tye of marriage, the honor of thy freinds, the expectation of all that thought thee vertuous, with rebellion, childish and base rebellion, but continue after forgiuenesse too, and worse, your mischiefe, and against him, setting the hope of heauen by,
& the deare reseruation of his Honor, nothing aboue ground coud haue wonn to hate thee, We'll goe thy wayes.

Mari. Yes.

Petru. You shall heare me out first, & what punishment maist thou deserue, thou g thing thou idle thing of nothing, thou pull'd primrose that two houres after art a weed, and wither'd for this